Journalism Guides on website

How do I find books, DVD's, maps, etc?

Visit the Journalism Library website (<http://library.missouri.edu/journalism>) and search the Classic Catalog (MERLIN).

How do I find journals/articles?

Choose "A specific article/journal" under the "Looking For?" list.

May I check out laptops and cameras?

Yes, and more. Choose the "Journalism Equipment" link under the "Looking For?" menu. All students borrowing equipment must fill out a Journalism Library Equipment Check-Out Agreement Form.

Do I need a library card?

Your MU ID serves as your library card and enables you to check materials out of the libraries.

How long can I keep library books?

Undergraduates may check MU books out for one month. Faculty, staff and graduate students may check books out for four months. MOBIUS books have shorter check out times.

Can books be renewed online?

Yes, click on the top drop-down "My Accounts" and choose "Renew my Books"

Equipment can not be renewed online.

Do I have access to research databases off-campus?

Yes, databases, e-journals, and the online catalog are accessible by logging in with your MU ID (Paw Print).

What are course reserves and where do I find them?

Course reserves are materials that your professors place "on reserve" to supplement and support classes. They are located at the front desk. Ask by course, or title & call #.

Electronic reserves can be found under the "Quick Links" menu on the Journalism Library website. Look for E-Reserves.

What do I do if none of the MU Libraries have the book or article I need?

If a book is not available at MU, try searching the MOBIUS catalog. If it is available, use the "request" function to order it.

If an article that you need is NOT available either online or in print at MU, choose the "Request an item" link under the "Quick Links" menu on the Journalism Library website.

Where can I find Journalism master's projects, theses and dissertations?

Journalism master's theses and dissertations are available electronically from 2005 and master's projects from 2012 in MOSpace, (<https://mospace.umsystem.edu>) MU's digital repository. Look in the Journalism Guides under "Quick Links" in "Resources for Journalism Graduate Students"

Previous to those dates, all were published in print format. They and the digital versions may all be found by searching in MERLIN, the online catalog.

Does the Journalism Library have group study rooms?

Yes, the Journalism Library has two group study rooms. You may reserve either one by clicking on the "Study rooms" link under the "Looking For" menu on the Journalism Library website.

Is wireless available in the Journalism Library?

Yes, wireless is available in all libraries.

May I print from my laptop?

Yes, choose the "Print Anywhere" tab from the DoIT website (<http://doit.missouri.edu/>) to download software that will allow you to send your print jobs to any of the many printers on campus.

Tips to Avoid Fines

Late and billed MU & UM (MERLIN System) books result in a $175 fine. Fines will be removed if the books are returned within a reasonable time.

MOBIUS (MO Consortium) late or lost book fines vary by loaning institution. There is a $20 nonrefundable fine that stays on a billed MOBIUS book.

Lost books may be replaced and fines removed based on consultation with the subject librarian.

Fines for Reserve Books & Equipment

Overdue Books on Reserve = $2/hr/book

Overdue Equipment = $10/hr with $100 maximum

Items not returned will need to be replaced with an exact replacement. Items not returned or replaced will result in a replacement cost fine and loss of MU Library checkout privileges. Always answer any emails about overdue equipment.

Returning Overdue Reserve Items Will Not Remove Fines

For more information choose About Us from the "Quick Links" menu on the Journalism Library website.

“A grad student’s best friends - Dorothy Carner and Sue Schuermann - at the Missouri School of Journalism library. Their dedication to helping students is one of the reasons Mizzou is the best journalism school in the world.” Alecia Swasy PhD 2014.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Journalism Libraries were founded 107 years ago?

The Journalism Libraries are made up of two specialized libraries:

Frank Lee Martin Memorial Journalism Library

The Columbia Missourian Library

102 Reynolds Journalism Institute is the sixth home of the Journalism Library. Its first home was Switzler Hall. From there, it moved to Neff Hall, then to Walter Williams Hall, next to Neff Annex and to RJII in 2008.

The Journalism Libraries became MU Library branches in the 1920's and as such are part of MU Libraries.

The Journalism Library (102 RJII)

Has been recognized as a “collection of distinction” by OCLC (the largest online public access catalog in the world).

- Is home to the largest academic photojournalism collection.
- Provides access to over 40,000 newspapers (print & online).
- Provides access to over 35,000 digital periodicals.
- Provides access to multimedia creation equipment and software.
- Digitally archives the print Missourian, daily and Vox Magazine, weekly.

The Columbia Missourian Library (315 Lee Hills Hall)

- Supports the editors and reporters of the Columbia Missourian and Vox Magazine.
- Has a rich historical file on various subjects, perfect for backgrounding previously published stories, fact checking, and story ideas.
- Provides access to equipment for student reporters.
