Update on benefits change impact – Kathy Peters – Fiscal Officer

- This change will not change benefit plans or benefit costs for employees. It increases the departmental portion paid per employee. Benefits are only one of many factors being considered when reviewing open positions.

 - The completion timeframe is 2021 with $7 million dollars of funding from the campus.
- Space
 - Space consultant
 - Shepley Bulfinch, has been selected. They will be on campus April 3-4.
 - Their plan should be available in July, emphasize an outlook of 10 years and include plans for our Depository, Special Collections and Ellis South Extension spaces.
 - The One Stop Shop, also called the Student Experience Center's, move will be in coordination with the Student Success Center move.
 - The Engineering Library was discussed and no recommendation has yet come from Engineering.
- New budget model
 - This new model is based on funding departments by the number of students, credit hours paid for by those students, and research for teaching units that each department obtains. Since these attributes cannot be directly applied to the Libraries alone, each department will be responsible for funding their assessed portion toward the Libraries.
 - A Campus decision on how external departmental space use will be determined is unclear at this time.
- Tax revenue is down.

- The University may have a budget cut this year as opposed to a flat budget which the University received last year. The University may look at taxing those with standing accounts.
- Elsevier contract
 - University of California system has walked away from a contract with Elsevier. President Choi has looked into what we can do to save the 4million dollars that we pay to Elsevier system wide. Other factors to consider are AAU credentials and publishing in Elsevier for tenure criteria. If such a decision were to be made at the University of Missouri System, the impact would be for the 2020 subscriptions.
