Rima was appointed Curator of European and American Art at the Museum of Art and Archaeology in December 2022. She holds master's and doctoral degrees in art history from Bryn Mawr College, and a bachelor's degree from the University of Notre Dame. A generalist in the history of art, Rima's scholarly focus is on Early Modern Art of Germany and the Netherlands. Prior to joining the MAA, she served as Associate Curator, European Painting and Sculpture at the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art in Kansas City, MO, and Curator at the Figge Art Museum in Davenport, IA. She was also the recipient of the Allen Whitehill Clowes Fellowship at Newfields; previously the Indianapolis Museum of Art, IN. Along with her curatorial work, she served as a guest lecturer on exhibition conception, development, and design for the Western Illinois University Museum Studies Program.
